Mandatory expenses

Mortgage insurance (for insured loans only and with a purchase price of under $1,000,000)<sup>1,2</sup>

When your down payment is greater than 5% but less than 20%<sup>3</sup>, you must obtain mortgage insurance with the CMHC (Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation) or SAGEN.

You can add the amount of your mortgage insurance premium to the amount of your mortgage loan. Estimate your premium using the CMHC or SAGEN calculator and enter it here: $ _____.

The mortgage insurance premium is subject to 8% tax, payable in cash before the sale is concluded at the lawyer's office.

Tax on mortgage insurance.....

Example calculation using a purchase price of $550,000:

Minimum down payment of $30,000:

5% of the first $500,000 of the purchase price = $25,000

plus 10% on the portion above $500,000, i.e., $50,000 = $5,000

Mortgage financing amount: $520,000, i.e., the purchase price of $550,000 minus the $30,000 down payment

Mortgage insurance premium cost: $20,800

Provincial sales tax on the mortgage insurance premium: $1,664, i.e., 8% of $20,800

Legal fees

The preparation, signing and registering of the various legal documents related to the purchase of a property requires a lawyer's expertise. These fees are your responsibility.

Allocation and account adjustment fees

When closing the sale with the lawyer, in some cases, the seller must be reimbursed for any expenses paid in advance, such as municipal and school taxes, electricity or natural gas bills and condo fees, if applicable. The lawyer is responsible for calculating these fees based on the date of purchase.

Land Transfer Tax

The municipality issues an invoice for the land transfer tax. This invoice must be paid at the lawyer's office when the transaction is closed.

Mandatory expenses total

They must be available before the mortgage payment or at the appointment with the lawyer.

Other anticipated expenses

Inspection fees

Whether you choose a new or existing home, it is highly recommended that you call in a building inspector before you purchase. In some cases, the inspection may be mandatory. A new home should be inspected before the drywall is installed.

You can contact professional orders or associations whose members offer this service and comply with professional standards.

A detailed report will indicate whether the existing home requires repairs in the short, medium or long term and could also indicate any defects.

Other tips are available on the website: TARION building confidence.

Appraisal fees

When required, your financial institution contracts a professional appraiser to produce a report establishing the property's actual market value. You are responsible for the expenses.
